

AHIC

Australian Hemp Council

Purpose

The AHC is a primarily grower and processor driven and funded organisation, focusing on addressing issues impacting the industry whilst engaging with Government and community. The members of the council are working to drive policies that will foster productivity of the Australian Hemp Industry with a specific focus on improving the industry's capacity to compete at a global level, thus ensuring long term sustainability of a profitable industry.

Fodder Group

Objective

To be the advisory body for the AHC on hemp and its derivatives as a feed for livestock and companion animals with a view to provide well-supported evidence advocating for regulatory changes and government policy at a state and national level.

Scope

The Hemp Fodder Group will have a wide-ranging scope, encompassing various aspects of hemp as feed for livestock and companion animals.

Fodder Group

The group's activities will include, but not limited to:

- Research & Analysis
- Regulatory Advocacy
- Information Dissemination
- Collaboration & Networking
- Policy Development

Collectively, these actions will serve to develop the hemp feed market for both livestock & companion animals, and consequently assist in industry development by creating demand.
